Historic Districts Council Protests Plans to Demolish 270 Park Avenue

o sooner did JPMorgan Chase announce plans to demolish and replace its headquarters building at 270 Park Avenue, than the Historic Districts Council renewed its call upon the NYC Landmarks Preservation Commission to evaluate landmark status for the building. The HDC originally submitted this request in 2013.

270 Park was completed in 1960. A woman architect, Natalie Griffin de Blois, led the design team at Skidmore Owings & Merrill an example of mid-century corporate Modernism as practiced by the masters of the form...it is deserving of preservation not only on architectural grounds, but also for the fact that its primary designer was a woman who never got adequate credit at SOM."

JPMorgan Chase's plan is the first development project under the East Midtown Rezoning passed by the city in 2017. At 52 stories, 270 Park currently houses 15,000 Chase employees. The company plans to replace the building with a taller, 70-story tower made possible by the purchase of unused air rights from buildings in the area. It is hoped that

TBA Among Those Seeking Changes to Design for East River Pedestrian Walkway

Residents in Sutton Area and Turtle Bay are actively working to change the design of a pedestrian walkway as proposed by the New York Economic Development Corporation. The walkway is part of the project to extend the Manhattan Waterfront Greenway along the East River between 38th and 61st streets.

As proposed by the NYEDC, the walkway would pass over Clara Coffey Park, at 54th and Sutton Place South, blocking the sky and destroying the privacy of residents in adjacent buildings. The TBA has proposed an alternate location for the walkway, and other solutions are also being examined.

Elected officials – Rep. Carolyn Maloney, Senator Liz Krueger, Assembly Member Dan Quart, Council Members Keith Powers and Ben Kallos, and City Comptroller

Scott Stringer – have backed the community's request to rethink the walkway. The NYEDC has said that limitations in the availability of public lands, delays and additional costs would result from changes to the existing plan.

Newsworthy Notes

Remembering

Olga Hoffman, a longtime director and member of the Turtle Bay Association, died recently. Olga was an unfailing supporter for the Turtle Bay Association and Friends of Dag Hammarskjold Plaza. She was known and loved by many neighbors and friends in the neighborhood who will miss her.

Jay Alan Litwin passed away following a long illness. He was 76 years old. Jay's extraordinary commitment to the community and his upbeat and generous spirit never flagged. He served as President of the 17th Precinct Community Council for more than 40 years. His steady leadership created a new, high standard in community-police relations, not only in Turtle Bay, but also Sutton Area Community to the north, and Murray Hill to the south. Jay was a tireless advocate for these and other communities, always striving to improve quality of life and the safety of the residents and businesses in the neighborhoods.

He is mourned by the 17th Precinct, the Turtle Bay Association, and his many associates and friends in the communities that fall within the 17th Precinct.

Marilyn Wright passed away recently. She lived into her nineties, and was a steadfast supporter of the TBA over the course of many years. Marilyn was often seen taking a walk along Second Avenue or having coffee at Morning Star Café. We are saddened to lose a wonderful neighbor.

CVS. The benefit to the neighborhood of yet another large-chain health product outlet remains to be seen. This is the latest addition to at least five such stores already located within Turtle Bay.

CVS is basically a pharmacy, but also carries a mix of cosmetics, household and food items. We recommend not only convenience, but also comparison shopping as the best way to get the most from CVS and its competitors in the neighborhood.

Proposal to Co-name a Street in Memory of Jay Litwin

The TBA supports a recommendation to Community Board 6 and the NYC Department of Transportation that a neighborhood street be co-named in memory of Jay Alan Litwin. Jay recently died following a life of extraordinary commitment to the community, including 40 years served as President of the 17th Precinct Community Council.

The recommendation suggests one of three locations within either Council Member Keith Powers's District 4, or Ben Kallos's District 5: East 51st Street between Lexington and Third avenues, in front of the 17th Precinct; any single block on East 51st Street between Lexington and First avenues; or any block on East 55th Street in the Sutton Area Community where Jay lived and once served as a member of SAC.

Turtle Bay Music School Will Move South

If you enjoy the public concerts at the TBMS, you'll need to travel south beginning sometime in the fall of 2018. The TBMS is selling its longtime home on 52nd Street and buying another building on 38th Street and First Avenue. We'll miss the school and let you know what becomes of the building in the future.

Keith Powers Talks About First Months in Office

Upon taking office as Council Member for Manhattan's District 4 on January 1, Keith Powers began the hard work of representing his constituency, which includes Turtle Bay.

On April 9, the TBA's board welcomed Keith for an update. Here is a summary of some of his plans and priorities:

Current Neighborhood Issues

East River Greenway. Keith supports efforts to revise plans proposed by the NYEDC for a pedestrian walkway at East 54th Street to better accommodate the needs of Sutton Place South residents. In seeking a workable solution, Keith has led the charge with Rep. Carolyn Maloney, Senator Liz Krueger, Assembly Member Dan Quart, District 5 Council Member Ben Kallos, the Sutton Area Community group, Community Board 6 and the Turtle Bay Association.

Citywide Issues

Strengthening laws against sexual harassment. To align city with state law, Keith developed legislation – his first bill – to codify protection against sexual harassment for all employees in New York City, regardless of employer size. Passed in April, the law will cover nearly 60 percent of workers previously not protected.

Tax relief for mid-size businesses and residential property owners. Dan Garodnick introduced and successfully passed a law to roll back rent taxes paid by eligible small businesses located south of 96th Street in Manhattan. Keith wants to extend rental tax savings to include mid-size businesses. He is also working on an initiative to lower property taxes for residential owners in Manhattan.

Reducing the proposed city budget.

Mayor Bill De Blasio has announced a 2019 city budget of $88.7 billion, exceeding the 2018 budget by $4 billion. Keith, who sits on the Finance Committee, and his colleagues on the City Council have identified, and are working to realize, $400 million in savings from the budget as proposed.

Helping the homeless. With other City Council members, Keith is working to secure increased funding that would assist homeless people living on the streets in moving to shelters.

Committee Membership. Keith is Chair of the Committee on Criminal Justice and a member of the following committees: Health; Economic Development; Finance (Subcommittee on Capital Budget); Governmental Operations; Oversight and Investigation; and Public Safety.

Keith Powers New York City Council Member Manhattan District 4

Including Upper East Side, Carnegie Hill, Yorkville, Central Park South, Midtown East, Times Square, Koreatown, Peter Cooper Village and Stuyvesant Town, Waterside Plaza, Tudor City, Turtle Bay, Murray Hill, and Sutton Place.

About the City Council Committees

The Council has 35 standing committees that practice oversight of NYC functions, including human services, infrastructure and government affairs. Each committee is headed by a Council Member (Chair), includes at least five members, and meets at least once a month. The Council also has several subcommittees, which are convened to review and make recommendations regarding topics of particular interest.

After proposed legislation is heard by its appropriate committee, it is then sent to be considered by the whole Council.

Each Council Member also serves on at least three standing committees or sub-committees. Council Members are assigned to committees through a process that the entire Council votes on.

Rent Relief Available for Eligible Senior Residents

The NYC Rent Freeze Program offers eligible seniors relief in housing costs through the Senior Citizen Rent increase Exemption and the Disability Rent Increase Exemption.

SCRIE freezes the rent for head-of-house-hold seniors age 62 and older who live in rent-regulated apartments. Eligibility requires an annual household income of $50,000 or less. DRIE is an exemption against future rent increases for eligible disabled persons living in rent-controlled, rent-stabilized, Mitchell-Lama and other eligible apartments. Applicants must meet certain eligibility requirements for DRIE benefits.

Find more information and assistance at www1.nyc.gov; local senior centers; and 311, or visit the offices at 66 John Street, 3rd floor, Monday to Friday, 8:30 am to 4:30 pm.

SCHE Offers Property Tax Relief to Senior Homeowners

Property tax breaks are now available to seniors who will be 65 or older on December 31, 2019; own one-, two-, or three-family homes, condominiums, or cooperative apartments; have a combined annual income of $58,399 or less; have owned the property for at least 12 consecutive months prior to filing for the exemption; occupy the property as their primary residence.

The Department of Finance sent letters to some seniors in September 2017 notifying them of approval for the exemption, retroactive to July 1, 2017. For those people a credit will be applied to their property tax accounts. If you did not receive the credit/ exemption on your January 2018 tax bill, you will receive it for the entire 2017/2018 tax year on a future bill as the Department of Finance updates its records.

For information or to apply for the exemption, contact 311 or email the Department of Finance at www1.nyc.gov/site/finance.

Ekavi Celebrates 45 Years in Turtle Bay

By Hanita Blumfield

One glance in Ekavi's store window brings the promise of beautiful and special things within: women's clothing and accessories sourced and selected with care for women who dress with distinctive style. "Ekavi" is Greek for Hecuba, the mythological queen and wife of King Priam of Troy during the Trojan War. It is the ideal name for a store that dresses women in a fashion both modern and classic.

So great is Ekavi's appeal to customers, that this is the 45th year since its opening at the same location on Second Avenue just north of 47th Street. The anniversary is extraordinary in Manhattan where stores come and go overnight, even more so recently. My memory is full of long-gone favorite neighborhood shops, and Ekavi's continued existence is reassuring.

On a recent visit, I was welcomed by owner Tina Theodorou and protégé Mary Koskialho. Ekavi is the fulfillment of Tina's original vision of a place for simple and sophisticated women's clothing made of the best-quality fabrics.

Mary handles day-to-day erations with a future succession in mind. She and Tina source inventory from small companies, worldwide, especially those owned by women. The resulting merchandise celebrates diversity, such as garments made of organic cashmere produced in Mongolia, Italian coats, jackets and ready-to-wear collections manufactured by family businesses in Tuscany, and an exclusive line of alpaca coats from a Peruvian woman designer. Typically cosmopolitan are scarves of merino wool and silk, handmade by women in Mexico, instructed by a Danish-American designer, and airy dresses created at an in-home studio in Cape Cod. Handmade jewelry from Germany complements the outfits.

There's more to Ekavi's success than its queenly namesake and exquisite offerings. Tina and Mary value and offer superior customer service built on personal relationships. Clients come in for fittings and rely on the fashion advice they receive. The store has served three generations in some of the same families, and there are customers who travel long distances to shop here.

Ekavi is a longtime member of the TBA. We celebrate its almost half-century in business, and expect that its fashion flair and personal service will continue to keep it an iconic Turtle Bay treasure.

East Side Animal Hospital: Seventy Years of Pet Care in Turtle Bay

By Phyllis Gitomer

If your pet iguana is under the weather, the East Side Animal Hospital has you covered. The same goes for your ferret, rabbit, guinea pig, rat, mouse, bird, python, and, most usually, dog or cat.

Located in a brownstone on 52nd Street between First and Second avenues, East Side Animal Hospital's door opens to clean, bright and newlyrenovated facilities. Originally established in 1948, the practice was taken over by director Dr. Keith Manning in 1993 and now employs twenty: four vets (Doctors Manning, Shelby Freda, Laura Kennedy and Mark Landesman), and a team of experienced vet technicians, kennel and office staff.

Dr. Freda has been with the practice for seven years and has been taking care of my dog Benny for almost two years. She walks to work from her home nearby and sees 15 to 18 pets and their people each day. Dr. Freda not only loves animals, but also finds fascination and inspiration in their unique ways – a dog's ability to read human emotions or a cat's capacity for combining independence with affection.

problems: parasite prevention via heartworm pills (for dogs) and flea and tick control; and routine vaccination, especially against leptospirosis for city dogs. Because cats are experts at hiding illness, routine checkups are important to help identify and treat potential issues in advance of obvious symptoms or discomfort.

The question of premium pet foods as compared with supermarket brands is a "tricky" one according to the doctor. "Premium" is a marketing term with no required standards, and ingredients are not subject to regulation. Dr. Freda recommends reading the label and avoiding foods with meat meal or meat byproducts, or corn.

"I like some brands because the main protein source is whole meat (no byproducts or meal): Halo, Orijen, Blue Buffalo and Taste of the Wild are examples. In general, if your pet has no GI issues or allergic symptoms (licking paws, recurring skin infections) related to a certain brand, then stick with what works," she says.

Dr. Freda finds it rewarding both to prevent and to heal illnesses. "There is a moment in almost every day when a very distressed person will come in with a visibly suffering pet. I enjoy my work because I have the actual ability to help these animals feel better and become healthier, and even to save their lives. I feel lucky in my relationships, especially with pet owners in Turtle Bay, because they are such good partners. They are observant and willing, and they care so deeply about their pets' well-being. That's why I love my job."

East Side Animal Hospital is open seven days a week, and keeps a few appointment slots open each day to accommodate emergencies. For an appointment, please call or visit the website at eastsideanimalhospital. com.

Subway Safety and Crime Prevention Tips

The NYPD offers these tips when riding the subway.

- On the subway platform, wait behind the yellow line, away from the platform edge.
- Be mindful of your belongings at all times especially when using personal electronic devices.
- Hold on to your pocketbook: keep it in front of you, even if using the shoulder strap.
- Keep your wallet out of sight and avoid keeping it in a rear pocket while standing aboard the train.
- Do not place your wallet or purse inside a shopping bag or other open container. Instead, secure it in a closed handbag or pocketbook, or an inside coat pocket.
- Thefts from sleeping passengers make up 25 percent of all major subway crime. Remain alert and avoid falling asleep on the subways to reduce opportunity for criminals.

Private Sanitation Companies Under Scrutiny

The New York City Business Integrity Commission is working to regulate the private carting industry, with special attention to safety.

If you see any dangerous activity from private sanitation companies – such as trucks speeding, illegally standing on the curb, mixing non-recyclable waste with recyclable products, and employees hanging off the back of trucks with the vehicle in motion – please report it to 311 or to BIC directly at 212-437-0600. Be sure to note the date, time, location, license plate number and name of the private carting company.

and arts programming. Membership is free of charge to adults age 60 and over; a donation is suggested for meals.

the plan will ultimately generate more than $40 million for public improvements to the streets, pedestrian plazas and sidewalks in the neighborhood.

The goal of the Rezoning is to overhaul and update the buildings and public accommodations in the commercial district within a 73-block area surrounding Grand Central Terminal, one of the largest job centers in the region. Modernizing is a key to the health of New York City's economy and the city's status as one of the highest-profile business addresses in the world.

This initial conflict between JPMorgan Chase and the HDC – between the forces of change and preservation – typifies the history of development in New York City since its origins. The TBA will continue to report on this issue as news emerges.
